Mercer University is sponsoring the October Engineering Scholarship Challenge. Last year Mercer awarded over $1.4 to over 70 students. The Saturday event on October 23rd will include campus and engineering laboratory tours in the morning, followed by lunch and a short program for students and their parents. In the afternoon, students will complete our scholarship challenge to help us determine their aptitude for engineering as a college major. A parents' program will be offered in the afternoon to answer questions about our programs and to introduce representatives from our admissions, housing, financial aid, and student life offices. Based on your nomination, the student's application, GPA and SAT/ACT scores, and the results of our challenge event, we plan to award full and partial scholarships to a wide range of students. We know that test scores are only part the recipe for student success so we value your opinions and nomination of students with strong academic potential coupled with a flair for problem solving, teamwork, and creativity.
